McNelis Attends State College Meet

William J. McNelis, president of Valley College, is currently attending the annual fall conference of the California Junior College Association at Yosemite National Park. McNelis explained that the purpose of these conferences is to inform and decide on education problems of both national and state-wide importance.

He went on to say that it also gives the administrators of all the junior colleges in the state a chance to discuss pertinent problems in an informal manner between the meetings at the conference.

The first session of the conference in Yosemite began Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. and will come to a conclusion today at noon.

Topics Discussed

The theme of this year's conference was "The Meaning of Quality and Economy in Education." Other topics reported on and discussed were "Legislation and Its Affect Upon Junior Colleges," "Legislation and Education," "The Need for State College-Junior College Cooperation" and the "Legislator's Dilemma."

Legislators and administrators from all the junior colleges and several four-year institutions such as SC and UCLA are taking part in the conference, said McNelis.

Hear Able Speakers

A few of the administrators and legislators speaking are Gordon H. Winton Jr., member of the California Legislature, assemblyman 31st district; Harold L. Enarson, director, Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education; Roy E. Simpson, Superintendent of Public Instruction and Director of Education, State of California; and Donald L. Grunsky, member of the California Legislature, state senator, 23rd district, chairman Senate Education Committee.

Also speaking on "The American Association of Junior Colleges" is Edmund J. Gleazer Jr., national executive director of junior colleges.

McNelis said that each of the junior colleges has one vote on matters of debate that arise within the conference.

Matters for debate will be the zoning of junior colleges and moving from a 9-game to a 10-game schedule for athletic events., said McNelis.

McNelis also said that Valley College has participated in the California Junior College Association conventions since 1954.

'Magazines for Friendship' Drive Starts Tomorrow

Spearheading a drive for "Magazines for Friendship," the Knights will launch a two-week campaign to collect used magazines tomorrow. These magazines will be sent to foreign countries in hopes of counteracting communist propaganda.

"Magazines for Friendship" was formulated by Professor Albert Croissant of Occidental College, Los Angeles.

10,000 Set as Goal

"If every student contributed one magazine, we would have 10,000 magazines," said John Holmes, president of the Knights. "Of course. we hope to have many times that amount," he added.

The Knights plan to collect and store the magazines in trash dumpsters until they can find storage space elsewhere.

Posters will be on the campus tomorrow to instigate the two-week drive.

"Magazines for Friendship" has been endorsed by Eleanor Roosevelt, Bernard Baruch, Walter Winchell, Drew Pearson and the late John Foster Dulles.

A nationwide organization, Magazines for Friendship Inc. received the Award of Merit from the United States Government.

The following magazines have been recommended for sending:

Atlantic, American Girl, American Home, Better Homes & Gardens, Boys' Life, Business Week, Coronet, Cosmopolitan, Farm Journal, Field & Stream, Fortune, Good Housekeeping, Harper's, Holiday, House Beautiful, House & Garden, Ladies Home Journal, Life, Look, Mechanix Illustrated.

McCall's, Mademoiselle, National Geographic, National Parent-Teacher, Nation's Business, N.Y. Times Magazine, N.Y. Times Book Review, N.Y. Herald-Tribune Books, Newsweek, New Yorker, Pageant, Parents' Magazine, Popular Mechanics, Popular Science, Reader's Digest, Redbook.

Council Breath Held At Roll Call

The Executive Council will hold its breath today when roll is called to see who will be missing this time.

Ted Woodson filled the vacated office of Commissioner of Rallies last week just in time to hear the resignation of Secretary Louise Mata "for personal reasons."

All students carrying 10½ units with a 2.0 grave average who are interested in applying for the office may come to the council today in Student Center.

My actual nose count, Miss Mata's replacement, to be appointed at Executive Council today, will be the third student body secretary in seven weeks of school.

That isn't a bad average if the purpose is to pass the job around, but it gets a little hard on the government after a while.

In fact, the "case of the missing officers" has been plagueing this semester's Executive Council ever since it opened the year only to find that half of its members had resigned during the summer.

Woodson is the 11th Executive Council member to join the body since school opened in September. For a seven-week period, the average is obvious to even the poorest math student.

What happens to council members? Old officers never die, they just join the service, drop too many units or fall back on good old "personal reasons."

Anthology Coming Soon

Man and Life ,the annual anthology of the Behavioral Science Departments, published by the Behavioral Science Club, will be presented for the fourth time in December.

Valley is the only two-year college with this type of publication, according to Noel Korn, head of the Anthropology Department.

Four hundred to five hundred copies are printed annually at a cost of 50 cents a copy.

The Associated Students defray the cost of printing and all profits go back into the student fund. About 100 copies are sent to various institutions and people in this country and abroad.

This publication has a limited circulation because of its subject matter. The quality, not the quantity, is emphasized to gain recognition for the information and discoveries in the publication, Korn said.

Volume three, last year's issue, contained 40 pages and consisted of four articles including "WKFL Fountain of the World" by Jerry C. Jordon, "Antropology in Space" by Betty R. Mayer, "Avoidance Taboos and Privileged Familiarities" by Virginia L. Hornak and "Mutual Funds" by Grace Dove.

SCHEDULE COUNSELING DATES

All students who have not made appointments to see their counselors this semester should do so before regisrtation begins in December. These appointments have nothing to do with registration, said Albert M. Caligiuri, counselor, but are for guidance purposes.

SEEK DANCE DECORATORS

Anyone interested in decorating for the Homecoming Assembly is welcome Tuesday at 8 a.m. in Monarch Bowl, said Tony Sydes, president of IOC.

Bullets for Peace

There goes another trash truck and in it a chance for world peace.

Those magazines that you discarded because they were cluttering up the house could be used as "bullets for peace."

General Carlos Romulo said a few weeks ago that there were one billion people in Asia that were not "for" the United States. The majority of these people are hanging in the balance between Russian Communism and American Democracy. At that time the audience demanded, what can we do to help?

Here is a way we can help to shift the balance our way. Magazines for Friendship is the answer, by sending appropriate magazines abroad that show a true picture of America.

The idea was originated by Albert Croissant, a professor at Occidental College, a few years ago.

Among the many prominent Americans that sanction the idea are Eleanor Roosevelt, Drew Pearson and the late John Foster Dulles.

The Valley Star has been in contact with Croissant and he has sent us copies of letters from Jordan and India begging for magazines. The people of these countries can read English and they want to know more about America.

India's population is 362,000,000, twice that of the United States. The populace of India has been leaning heavily toward communism. At the present they are being flooded with propaganda-filled periodicals from the communist countries. They are being told that all Americans think only of conquering the world.

We have a great chance to change their minds in our favor. Let's show these people the true America, not by countering with more propaganda but, by sending them America in Atlantic, Holiday, Life, Look, Readers Digest and many other magazines that reflect our great country.

Student Bombards Editorial Views; Chessman's 'Questionable Attack'

(Editor's note: Maximum length for Lion's Roar letters is normally 250 words. Because we believe this letter to be of particular interest to the general student body, we are printing it in its entirety.)

Editor:

I am writing this in reply to Tony Cifarelli's article about the "infamous convicted kidnapper-rapist Caryl Chessman," in the Oct. 22 issue of the Valley Star.

Let's take a new look at those charges.

The article stated, "Chessman's guilt is unmistakeable! The account of the trial shows a career of robberies and kidnapping, followed by rape and acts of perversion."

Cifarelli implied tha the man is unmistakeably guilty because he was accused and convicted of those crimes.

Isn't that asking a blind man's look at our courts of law?

The fact that a man is accused of a crime or found to be guilty by a panel of people does not make him "unmistakeably guilty."

The reason the supreme court automatically reviews a case where there is capital punishment involved should show you that it is not a case of unmistakeable guilt. Also why then do our laws allow us to appeal a decision and to keep appealing until the truth is found?

It seems he put an awful lot of faith in a judge and a panel of citizens who are human and can make mistakes.

Also the fact that Chessman is still alive after 11 years gives proof that some of the courts think there is a mistake some where!

We have men on trial every day who are accused of a variety of crimes. That doesn't mean they are guilty. Some are and some are not guilty. Of those convicted, we still have some who are not guilty.

Let us all pray the day never comes when a man is guilty without the right to contest it just because a few people think so.

If that day ever arrives, we will know that this long and fearsome battle now being fought between Democracy and Communism will have been won—with Communism the victor!

Also I can quote Cifarelli as saying, "Chessman display contempt for the laws governing his trials."

A man who is fighting for his life, to prove his innocence, to prove that justice had been in error, a man who is now and for the past 11 years has been face to face with the gas chamber, that man isn't showing contempt; desperation maybe, but not contempt.

"A commutation of life sentence would put additional strain on the taxpayer," said Cifarelli.

When we have thousands of people imprisoned in our penal institutions, and more going in every day, I think there is room for one more man.

Think of the tremendous amount of money to be spent each year by the state for roads, freeways, parks, public services, disability, unemployment, aid to all people in need, and hundreds of other ways.

Against the millions being spent elsewhere, I think we can be overly generous with the few dollars it would amount to and lend the man for a little four foot by eight foot prison cell in which to spend the rest of his life.

I know I would rather pay the few pennies a month, which is about all it would cost each individual taxpayer, to save the life of a man who otherwise would be on my conscience for the rest of my life, thinking we might have been able to save him. But it would put too great a burden on the state.

I hardly think that God put Caryl Chessman or any man or woman on this earth to die—even if it is through a legal killing!

Furthermore, Cifarelli states "the threat of capital punishment is enough to scare off many criminals from committing a crime punishable by death."

That is ridiculous.

If fear of death kept men from committing crimes punishable by death, California would be rid of crime.

We lead the nation in execution of criminals. Why then do wo still have so much crime?

Capital punishment is supposed to be a threat to our would be criminals.

But interviews with thousands of convicted criminals, have uncovered the fact that the person who is about to kill is not in the frame of mind to give thought to any consequences.

To quote a convicted murderer, "I wasn't thinking when I did it, I just did it."

What about the conviction of an innocent man?

Can you think of anything more hopeless than telling a dead man you are sorry but you made a mistake?

The day will come when man will have attained some status as a civilized being.

Possibly by then, we will have stopped killing our brethren as a penalty for doing wrong.

Sex Panel Ill-Prepared

Editor:

I think I speak for most of the audience at the recent faculty panel on "Changing Morals of Courtship" when I say that it was ill-prepared and disappointing.

Most of us came to learn something, but Dr. Mayers, the only panel member that came prepared enough to teach us anything, was cut short by lack of time.

The topic was interesting, as witnessed by the number of people present, but if the panel wishes to keep a large audience, it must take the matter far more seriously than it did last week.

Were They Sexless?

Editor:

The Star reports that during the panel discussion on sex recently, the statement was made that Buddha and Christ were "sexless men." I'm sure Homer was nodding. Buddha had a wife and child before taking monastic vows and the historians disagree whether the founder of the Christian religion had been married during the 15 or 20 years of his youthful period about which the Synoptics are silent. The record does say that he was fond of women, and they were fond of him. He could hardly grasp the admiration of me if he had been sexless.

Ask Women's Status

Editor:

In an article appearing in the Thursday, Oct. 22, issue (headline reading "Sex Termed Great Illusion"), Dr. Jackson Mayers said that women insist on being recognized as important to society as men.

Dr. Mayers' statement sounds as if he thinks all women feel this way. In the first place—most women are out competing with men because they have to earn "extra money" to keep the family under the present conditions. Seeing as how they have to be working, why shouldn't they try to do their best and get the better positions—in many cases they work harder than men and get the lower salary.

In the second place—most women don't want the "important as" status. They would like to be able to stay home and devote their lives to their families and communities.

If Dr. Mayers has a solution as to how women can stay home and be "just" housewives, then I wish he would let the rest of us in on it—there are a number of my sex who would appreciate the information.

America in Missile Muddle

"General John B. Medaris quits as army missile chief. Not much future in his job. If a missile blows up, the parts go to the junk yard. If a missile works, the parts go to the air force."

The quote above, from Fletcher Knebel's syndicated column, Potomac Fever, explains but one facet in the disgraceful United States missile muddle.

When the United States permitted Russia to be the first nation to launch a satellite into orbit (Sputnik I, Oct. 20, 1957), six army satellites which could have been put into orbit before Sputnik were lying in a Huntsville, Ala., warehouse. For some still unexplained reason, the army had orders not to launch them.

Now two years later, after many unsuccessful ventures, America has put everything from "paddle wheels" to "kitchen sinks" in orbit. But during this same two-year period, Russia has hit the moon, orbited and taken pictures of the back side of the moon and put a satellite in orbit around the sun.

The much discussed interservice rivalry is not the only reason why we are lagging far behind the Soviet Union. Probably the biggest stumbling block standing between American success in the missile and space race is the balanced budget. Today a favorable balance of military power is vitally more important than a balanced national budget.

Speaking at Valley several weeks ago, General Carlos Romulo said, "the United States has been the leader of the world for only 14 years and already she is being challenged for that leadership by Russia."

In the race for outer space we have been challenged, surpassed and humiliated by a nation that we helped save from Hitler's invading Nazis during World War II.

We have not only ignored the Russian challenge, but we have been sitting back smugly on past laurels while the Soviet Union has won world acclaim with its many missile and space achievements.

While allowing the Russians to get a five-year lead on us (according to Dr. Werner von Braun, head of United States missile research) our research program has come to a grinding halt with the partial destruction of the launching pad at Cape Canaveral by an erratic Atlas missile.

Any nation which permits its missile and space program to decelerate for five months, by having its only launching pad dismantled by an accident, is in a pretty sorry state of affairs. Why Cape Canaveral is equipped with only one launching pad is a question only our balance-the-budget government can answer.

The United States' failure in the missile and space race is causing three mortal dangers—military, political and moral—to come into existence.

1. Military danger because rocket and space advances are related to future military needs.

2. Political dangers because other nations are and will choose Russia, not the United States as the nation they should copy and follow.

3. Moral danger because some Americans may decide that we are so far behind Russia that it is useless to compete with them.

Before we fall further behind Russia and these three dangers have the opportunity to grow, it is time for America to get her space and missile program off the dime and off the earth.

U.S. Losing Ideological War

Here is a simple fact which I hope will disturb you. The United States is losing the Cold War. We are losing the respect, friendship and allegiance of the uncommitted and undecided peoples of the world.

Daily the people of Southeast Asia, Africa, South America and Western Europe are submerged in a deluge of communist propaganda.

Red manufactured lies directed against anything and everything American are spread more than adequately through the press, the radio and the literature of these nations.

The real danger here is while we know these things the communists are saying and writing to be lies, the people to whom they are directed have no way of knowing they are not true. They have nothing with which to compare and evaluate this anti-American propaganda.

A classic example of red deceit was the "borrowing" of a press photograph of Americans in line purchasing World Series baseball tickets.

A week later this picture appeared in the red puppet press with a story about a new depression in the U.S. and people on the verge of starvation waiting in bread lines.

Again we knew this was a lie but few if any of the readers knew it was a lie.

The next obvious question is something like this. Well I've heard all this before but what am I supposed to do about it?

The time is here for you to do something about it. Today the Knights will begin a drive on the Valley campus called Magazines for Friendship. It will last for two weeks and will have a dual purpose.

First is the collection of popular, non-sectarian and non-secular magazines such as Atlantic, Life, Look, Good Housekeeping, Better Homes and Gardens and so forth.

The second goal will be to collect enough postage to send the books either to individuals or to distribution points throughout the world.

The publications are mailed not with the idea of converting everyone to our way of thinking, but to show them the benefits our system has brought to us.

They are sent to show that we are not out to exploit or dominate the underdeveloped nations, but to pursue the ends which will insure world peace.

Critics of the plan say that it does not give a true picture of American life, but a distorted, puzzled view of our day to day existence.

Perhaps this is true in part. However, time is running out for us. Our action or our lack of action will determine the course of history. We must appeal to these people on a materialistic level they can understand.

At this time we cannot afford to be apathetic or altruistic. There is too much at stake.

Chemistry Classrooms Compactly Housed

(Editor's note: This is the fifth in a series of feature articles dealing with the Phase One construction on Valley's new campus.)

By BOB WOODWARD, Star Staff Writer

Confusion, lost time and the wasted steps of locating chemistry classrooms on Valley's campus are now eliminated. With the compactly housed unit of the new Chemistry Building, students no longer need roam from the chemistry labs on the hill to those in back of the music rooms.

Room Set Apart

Only the detached solvent room is set apart from the five laboratories, four offices and preparation rooms, two lecture rooms, two balance rooms, instrument room, repair shop and stock room that makes up the chemistry unit.

Inside the laboratories, designed to accommodate 32 students, are four tables 16 feet long. Working space for eight students is provided along the two lengths of the tables.

Abundant Desk Space

Four combination offices and preparation rooms are provided to Valley's eight chemistry instructors. Each room has desk spaces for two instructors. The front portion of the office is used for the preparation of chemicals to be used during classes.

The northeast corner of the building is comprised of a 108-seat lecture room. Amphitheater type seating provides an arena for students to view instructor demonstrations without obstructions.

Two rooms are provided for the storage of scales, or in the language of the chemist—balances.

Meets Fire Regulations

Equipment is available in the repair room for the maintenance and repair of the instruments used in the chemistry department.

To meet fire department regulations, a detached block building has been constructed for the storage of solvents and other flammable liquids. Inside the main building is a stockroom for storage of non-flammable materials.

Available to Valley students are nine chemistry courses, which give a two-year curricula and will allow students to transfer, with junior status, to a four-year college.

Courses Open

Courses from Introductory Chemistry (Chemistry 3) through a study of the compounds of carbon (Chemistry 7) and principles of gravimetric and volumetric analysis (Quantitative Analysis) are open to students who have an interest in chemistry.

Chairman of the chemistry department is Julius Glater who has been on Valley's staff since 1954. He studied at the University of Connecticut for his B.A. degree and Trinity College for his M.S.

Name Instructors

Other chemistry instructors are Dr. Evamaria R. Chookolingo, M.A., Mills College and Ph. D., University of Washington; Dr. Louis Gordon, M.A., University of Saskatchewan and Ph.D., Columbia University; Joseph B. Nordmann, M.S. at SC; John Alden Snell, M.A. at Whitman College; Dr. Lawrence Snipper, M.A. at Reed College and Ph.D. at Oregon State.

Melvin Sprecher, M.A. at LA State; Ernest Toon, instructor for the past two years at UCLA; and Dr. Ernest O. Weinman, M.A. at SC and Ph.D. at the University of California at Berkeley.

Until Valley's third phase of construction is completed, the geology department will occupy an office, lecture room and store room in the Chemistry building.

Panel Installed

Acting head of the geology department is Dr. James Slosson, who is aided by Robert Clooney, a mineralogist who taught at Citrus Junior College last year.

A panel, which provides any desired voltage or amperage of direct current electricity into the laboratories, has been installed in the building. The direct current is obtained from the Physics building.

An innovation in the building is the placement of tanks in the roof for storage of distilled water. Trucks are able to drive up to the loading dock, pump distilled water into the tanks from where it is fed, by gravity, into the laboratories.

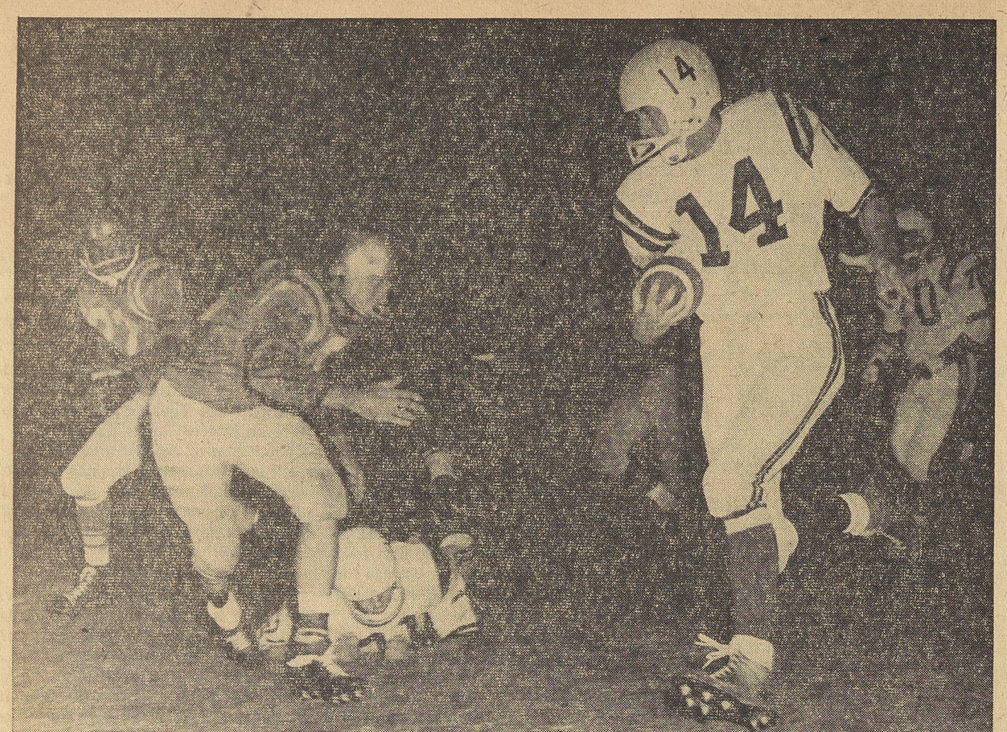
Second-Place Lions Favored In 'Trick or Treatment'



TRY TO CATCH ME—Phil Romoli sprints 14 yards for Valley's second tally in last week's 20-14 win over Harbor College. The Monarch eleven scored all their points in the first half while holding the Seahawks to two late touchdowns. Romoli later threw a 7-yard pass to halfback Pete Holt for the winning margin.

Barring over-confidence, Valley's second-place Monarchs loom as big favorites to down frustrated East Los Angeles in a Halloween gridfest on Monarch Field Saturday at 8 p.m. The Lions come into the lopsided contest with a 2-1 conference record, while the hapless visitors have not won a conference game.

Injury-free and ready to roll up a big score, Valley will meet one of the weakest East LA teams in Huskie history. Monarch Coach Al Hunt was the head mentor at the cross-town campus before coming to Valley and there is no love lost between the two schools.

Pete Holt has moved into third place on Valley's all-time ground-gaining list ahead of Dick Sanita. The little scatback has picked up 577 yards so far in his Lion career. Sanita gained 562. Also, in just five games, Tom Pulford is in seventh place with 405 yards. Pulford moved ahead of Bob Heinzer, who collected 358 yards.

Hunt has given the starting nod to ends Bob Wohlford and Jim Zar, tackles Bob Zuliani and Tom Maguire, guards Mike King and Dick Allen, center Alan Davison, quarterback Phil Romoli, halfbacks Pete Holt and Joe Sutton and fullback Tom Pulford.

Tackle Lee Critchfield has left Valley to join the Army.

Signal-callers Phil Romoli and Tom Mann turned in a fine performance at Harbor after taking over for Tom Davies, who recently suffered a broken jaw.

Monarchs Outplay

Although the Wilmington scoreboard did not show an easy victory for Valley last Saturday evening at Harbor, the statistics do. In the first down department the Monarchs collected 13 while the Seahawks managed only 7. Valley gained 296 yards rushing to 163 for Harbor. The overall net yards gained showed a decisive margin for the Lions, 251 yards to 195.

The story of the game was told in five interceptions and Tom Pulford's 90 yards. The Valley defense picked off five Harbor aerials and after an interception, Bob Freis ran 76 yards, setting a new interception return record. Freis broke Frank Negri's old record of 53 yards set against Taft in 1952.

Valley scored all 20 points in the first half and Harbor rolled up 14 while Hunt came close to clearing the bench in the second half.

Valley went 51 yards in 12 plays with Pulford charging for the final 11. Howie Smith returned to the lineup after being sidelined with a bad knee for several weeks. Smith sparked the drive with 21 yards.

Romoli TD

The next time Valley got the ball it went 51 yards in six plays. Quarterback Phil Romoli packed the pigskin the final 16 yards necessary for the score after Joe Sutton knocked two Seahawks out of the way with a key block. A rollout pass for the PAT was missed.

After Bob Zuliani recovered a fumble on the Hawk 16-yard line Valley scored again. A pass from Romoli to Holt was good for seven yards and a touchdown. A toss from Romoli to Sutton accounted for the two extra points.

Harbor came to life in the second half and scored the first time after Guy Hennigan recovered a Romoli miscue on the Valley 21-yard line. Sam Wicks scored on a nine-yard off-tackle run on third down. Walter Sorenson booted the extra point.

A 16-yard pass play from Sorenson to Robert Ortiz with Wicks kicking the extra point accounted for the final Seahawk score.

Davies' Injury Hurts Lions

Last week, the final chapter in the Valley football career of quarterback Tom Davies was written. The doctor's report showed that an injury, suffered while getting in some practice in a JV football game, was a broken jaw. It was broken in two places and had to be wired.

No, Davies wasn't the finest quarterback in Valley history. His record couldn't begin to compare with that of Bob Ritchie, who threw 79 passes and completed 38 of them or Tom Kotal who tossed 84 passes and completed 34.

It was feared at the onset of this football season that Valley had little talent with which to fill the vacated spots of Jerry Steele, Mickey Alzola and Bob Alfred of last year's squad.

Davies started to show promise last year when he threw 10 passes and completed five of them. As this season started, however, he left many doubts as to his ability as a first unit quarterback.

From opening game with San Francisco up until his final game with El Camino, Davies piloted a Monarch football team that won three games and lost just one. He completely surprised all who watched him and his potential loomed ahead.

Davies was a team football player. His leadership and judgment left little to be desired. On the field his spirit led Valley to several wins as it generated to the rest of the team.

This season he had thrown three touchdown passes. He had completed 7 out of 15 passes attempted and had picked up 126 yards through the airways.

"Whenever you lose a player with the experience of Davies it will hurt you," said backfield coach Bus Sutherland.

Phil Romoli and Tom Mann are capable of handling the signal-calling chores, although the loss of Davies' experience will be sorely felt. The two quarterbacks are both freshmen with no previous collegiate experience behind them until this season got underway.

* * *

Instead of complaining about the apathy of the Valley student body toward the singing of the college hymn, "All Hail Green and Gold," why not do something about it.

It is not a high school crowd that attends a junior college football game. Rather, it is more of an adult audience. There is not the feeling of live or die for old Van Nuys High or Rah, Rah, North Hollywood. The sooner cheerleaders and complainers realize this the better.

University of California at Berkeley has come up with the solution to the problem that not only confronts Valley, but nearly every college in the nation.

To avoid being embarrassed in front of alumni and guests and the public in general, Cal sings its hymn as the half time program ends. The band is on the field anyway and certainly not many people are going to leave at the half. How about it cheerleaders?

Fencers Duel For Honors

Six Valley fencers will compete for honors tomorrow at the Amateur Fencers' League of America saber championship at Faulkner's Studios in Hollywood.

Participating will be Larry Berman, Arnie Gottlieb, Frank Kaplan, Marty Katz, Lenny Lieber and Bob Zarit.

Friday night the Valley epee team placed fourth in the AFLA championship, which was held at the Long Beach YMCA.

Katz led the Monarchs with a 4-2 record, followed by Jim Reiner's 1-4 result and Jack Osborne, replacing Ted Aquaro, with an 0-6 record.

Dark Horse 'Camino Indians Bewilder Conference Foes

Bakersfield kept on going like a snowball rolling downhill last week as they beat previously undefeated Long Beach 22-0 at Long Beach. The big conference surprise so far this fall has been El Camino. After the Warriors beat Valley, they dropped Santa Monica 28-12 at home. The conference is now in a four-way second place tie with Valley, El Camino, Long Beach and Santa Monica having 2-1 records.

San Diego's 50 points against East LA last week was the largest score in the former's history.

Long Beach was without the services of left half Phil Ortiz, their leading pusher and pass receiver, against Bakersfield. He may be out for two more weeks due to an ankle injury.

Bakersfield has yet to be scored on via the ground attack.

El Camino's win from Santa Monica last week was their eighth in 13 tries. El Camino's halfback Gene Williams had himself a night against Santa Monica, scoring twice on the ground. This is one more TD than any one player has scored against the 1958 Metro and Junior Rose Bowl champs in any single game this year. Williams leads the El Camino Warriors in scoring with 34 points, including five TDs.

Valley Hosts Warrior Finmen

Preparing for its second Metropolitan Conference water polo match with El Camino Wednesday, the Valley Monarchs held a practice game with San Fernando Valley State College at Birmingham High School Friday which ended in a 12-12 tie.

Again this week, the Monarchs were without the services of their holeman, Chuck Butler, and their goalie Al Keubler, both injured. According to coach Ray Follosco, Butler should be ready for the match with El Camino next week.

Follosco points to this match as a very crucial one, for a victory here and one victory in the remaining two matches could mean a spot in the first division. The remaining two games are with Bakersfield at Valley and Santa Monica at the Corsair pool.

'Mural Program Slates 3 Tilts

The Beta League of Valley's intramural program has three football games slated today, the Bruins meet Phi Delta Psi, the Sports Car Club tangles with the Ends, and the Dolphins meet up with the Braves.

Last week, the Valley Stars forfeited to the Cobbs and the Dolphins to Phi Delta Psi. The Ramblers and the Group battled to a 7-7 deadlock, the Bruins whipped the Sports Car Club 14-0, and the Braves tripped the Ends, 12-0.

Cagemen Hold Opening Scrum

With basketball season quietly invading the Valley sports scene, coach Ralph Caldwell divided his hoop squad into two teams for its first inter-squad scrimmage Friday.

Co-captains for the Monarch Green team were Ted Fish and Joe McKenna. The Gold squad was led by returning letterman Keith Buchanan and former prep All-City star from Van Nuys High, Jack Hirsch.

Valley Harrier Squad Travels To Mt. SAC Annual Classic

Valley's harrier squad travels to Mt. San Antonio College tomorrow for the running of the annual Mt. SAC Invitational distance classic.

Featuring many of the top distance runners in Southern California, the Mt. SAC invitational is considered the top distance invitational on the West Coast, said Charlie Mann, Monarch harrier coach.

Running over a 3-mile course, the individual best runners from southland schools will compete for top honors.

After winning last week's trek, the Monarchs' Steve Matthews is once again rounding into shape and could be one of the top finishers of the Mt. SAC race.

Running effortlessly, Matthews led the Monarch squad in its 21-40 win over undermanned Santa Monica squad. Matthews won the race in a time of 16:29.5, slightly off his early season time for the UCLA course.

The Monarchs placed seven men in the top 10 spots to nearly sweep the 3-mile race. The only Santa Monica men to place ran second, fifth and tenth.

Following Matthews, Santa Monica's Jim Carr, timed in 17:23, moved ahead of Valley's Walt Lewis to post his season's best time. Lewis posted a time of 17:38 for the third spot.

Monarch Tom Webb, timed in 17:42, finished fourth after sprinting Santa Monica's Roger Allen to the finishing line.

Valley then placed four men in a row to sweep the sixth through ninth places. Valley finishers were Dave James, Don Goetziner, George Tawes and Joe Gero.

Santa Monica started only four runners over the hilly course. Thus they were tagged with the last place position.

In an unofficial previous meeting, Santa Monica didn't place a runner in the top 10 positions. The final score of that meet found Valley beating Glendale City College 27-29, while Santa Monica received a total of 90 points.

In the hill sport, the low score wins.
